

The Ozar-Hasegawa Dental Ethics Award presented by American Society for Dental Ethics

The Ozar-Hasegawa Ethics Award is an annual award named for two individuals who have contributed to the scholarship, discussion, and application of dental ethics, Professor David Ozar (Loyola University) and Dr. Thomas Hasegawa Jr. (Baylor College of Dentistry, deceased). The award is presented by the American Society for Dental Ethics (ASDE) to a dental or dental hygiene student for an essay or comparable product of careful ethical reflection.

Award:

- Cash prize of $500.00.
- One year membership in ASDE for the student and the advisor.
- Invitation to present the selected submission, in a manner appropriate to the creative work, either at the ASDE annual meeting or other agreed upon forum.

The winner and selected submissions will be posted on the ASDE Website:
www.societyfordentaethics.org.

Eligibility: All dental and dental hygiene students who are enrolled in an accredited school of dentistry and/or dental hygiene program in the United States and Canada. Students must be in good academic standing.

Entries: An essay or comparable product of careful ethical reflection (including, but not limited to, a video presentation, a poster presentation, a short story or other narrative work, etc.) in which the student:

- a. Describes* a case, i.e. a narrative situated in a practice setting or comparable professional situation -- in which there is a significant ethical issue from the perspective of the oral health professions;
- b. Identifies* the professional ethical issue(s) in the case;
- c. Examines* the issue(s) in such a way as to illuminate their most important elements from the perspective of professional ethics for oral health care providers;

- d. Proposes a resolution* of the ethical issue(s).
- e. All entries must be submitted in an electronic format to Professor Pamela Zarkowski via email at zarkowp1@udmercy.edu or c/o University of Detroit Mercy, 4001 W. McNichols Rd, Detroit MI 48221-3038.

* NOTE: Each of these four activities is to be presented in a manner appropriate to the type of creative work presented. For example, "describing" in an essay will ordinarily mean writing a narrative to begin the essay. "Proposing a resolution" to an ethical issue will, in an essay, ordinarily mean concluding the essay by formulating a judgment about what ought to be done in the case and providing careful reasoning in support of it. But other types of submissions are encouraged; and the creator's achievement of the four activities named above will be judged in each case in terms of what is appropriate for the type of creative work presented.

Guidelines:

1. Entries include both the submitted project and completion of the Ozar-Hasegawa Application. The application requires specific information and the signature of the student and the advisor. Students will be asked to sign a statement allowing their institution to verify their academic standing. Projects must be forwarded to Prof. Pamela Zarkowski via email at zarkowp1@udmercy.edu or c/o University of Detroit Mercy, 4001 W. McNichols Rd, Detroit MI 48221. Each student preparing an entry for the award must identify a faculty advisor to guide the student in the preparation of the entry. However, in no instance shall the advisor's assistance be so extensive that the entry as submitted is not principally the work of the student. Previous winners are not eligible to submit another entry for consideration.

Deadline for Submission:

All entries must be submitted in electronic form. The entry can be submitted via email, or CD or DVD. Entries must be submitted by February 15, 2008 In addition to the project submission, the application form must be submitted prior to or on February 1, 2008 A winner will be notified by March 1, 2008.

Selection:

Submissions will be reviewed an ASDE panel of judges identified by the Society's President.
